Is there anything else you believe you need to inform your Osteopathic practitioner?

Adult Osteopathic treatment informed consent

Osteopathy is a recognised manual therapy for the care of many musculoskeletal related conditions. However, much like anything you must recognise that there are slight risks associated with all health care procedures or treatments. This includes Osteopathic Manual Techniques, which you must be informed about. All of our Practitioners are registered with the Australian Health Practitioner Regulation Agency (APHRA). Our philosophy is to look at the body as ONE WHOLE UNIT to find the primary source of your problem. Our Osteopathic Practitioners will aim to help you understand what your body is going through so that you will leave with a better knowledge about what your body's limitations are and how to prevent and manage your problem down the track.

Normal treatment effects:

The initial 24-48 hours after an Osteopathic treatment you may experience mild temporary post-treatment soreness. There may also be temporary exacerbation of your symptoms or underlying condition. Please be advised that this is considered to be normal, as your body is responding to the treatment.

As part of your Osteopathic treatment, your treating practitioner may also use other treatment techniques and adjuncts stated below. Please kindly indicate by ticking the boxes below if you would like to consent to have these treatment techniques and adjuncts as part of your treatment; Please fill out additional consent forms for each treatment technique/adjunct, thank you.*

- Neck and spinal manipulation
- Superficial dry needling
- Myofascial cupping
- Shockwave therapy

I have had the opportunity to discuss the proposed care with my Practitioner below. I have disclosed all relevant health and medical information. I also acknowledge that I have had the opportunity to question the nature, extent and purpose of care of my Osteopathic treatment. I understand that I can withdraw consent to treatment at any time.

Our Privacy Statement sets out the policy of Casey Central Osteopathy with respect to the way in which we collect, use, disclose, store, secure and dispose of Personal Information about our patients. The information that we collect from you allows our Practitioner/s to assess your health and provide you with the utmost care possible. The information will ONLY be used for these purposes in strict adherence to the National Privacy Principles of the State and National Government's privacy legislation.

I confirm that I have read and understood ALL the information above; I hereby acknowledge my consent to the proposed Osteopathic care by the treating practitioner below.
